

HIKE JORDAN

275KM ALL-FEMALE DESERT CROSSING

THE EXPEDITION

In March 2018, 3 female UK adventurers will attempt to cross the Jordan desert. The 275km crossing will start in Dana and finish in the coastal town of Aqaba. Along the way, the team will pass Petra and Wadi Rum.

The women will be completely self-supported, They will navigate via traditional Bedouin routes and wild camp each night covering distances of up to 34km a day.

The expedition will take 12 days to complete.

CHALLENGES

This expedition will throw all sorts of challenges at them. As well as coping with the relentless heat and the hostile and remote location, the team will be carrying heavy packs with all their camping gear and supplies. Water sources will need to be well planned in advance and each member will be carrying up to 6 litres a day.

WOMEN IN ADVENTURE

Although the team are all professional adventurers - leading expeditions, speaking at events and writing - they work in an industry that is predominantly male, with ongoing equality battles. The Hike Jordan expedition is an opportunity to promote women in adventure in a positive light. A team of capable and inspiring women taking on a huge physical feat.

JORDAN

Jordan remains a place that is often seen as not safe, particularly for female travellers. The team hope to challenge stereotypes of the Middle East. Sharing stories of warmth and kindness, showing the beautiful landscapes and the variety that Jordan has to offer.
